Dear Alesia,

As you may know, our 2002 postgraduate student survey invited respondents to describe the qualities of outstanding University lecturers and courses, and to nominate any they had encountered during their tertiary studies, either at UNSW or elsewhere.

I am very pleased to advise that you were mentioned by name in this regard, and I extend my warmest congratulations on this excellent achievement. A number of courses taught in your School were also identified and if you were involved in their delivery, may I add my further congratulations.

A copy of the postgraduate survey report with the students' verbatim citations will shortly be posted on the FCE website. I am also writing to Heads of Schools and Units to pass on the good news.

From the 418 survey respondents a total of 260 nominations for outstanding UNSW FCE courses and lecturers were received, mostly in the MCom and MBT, compared with 90 nominations for other UNSW Faculties and other Universities. This is significant as it demonstrates that we have a successful, competitive platform of postgraduate deliverables and a circle of outstanding teaching staff as role models for the whole Faculty.

Teaching excellence only comes as a result of many hours of preparation, and a commitment to providing a world-class learning environment. My thanks to you for all your hard work and my congratulations again for being justly rewarded with your students' praise.

Yours sincerely,

Greg Whittred
